Paul (I Cor. 12) speaks of the church as the "body" of Christ. Christian fellowship is first of all an intimate growing-in to the life of Christ, sharing the same life with him. You can make a tinker-toy man with two arms or no arms, you can ull the legs and arms out and stick hem in again as you like, because only blocks and sticks. But you annot stick branches in and pull hem out of a vine like that; much ss pull legs and arms out of a If the church today is weak, it isbecause too many individual "members" are not members of Christ. They belong to the church, statis-

A NOTHER thing that fellowship means, grows out of this first thing. The New Testament idea—the New Testament fact-is that all Christians are parts of one another. just as all parts of a living thing It is quite true that not every one in the church then understood this, or Jesus and Paul would not have had to speak and write as they did But the church at large did understand it. Every church then was a kind of family, indeed often a mucl better family than that into which himself, indeed a new self ("If any man is in Christ, he is a new cre ation," Paul said), yet in the church every one belonged to every one else, just as in a good family. The good of one was the happiness of tion of one gave the others an op-portunity to fight for his rescue. preme, the united life, the life of God shared by those who love

Perhaps the best thing the Chrisian church today could do, instead getting more "members" who re not members, would he to rediscover and re-practice New Testament fellowship. Such a church would begin to win victories again,

How To Send Flowers

Who doesn't like to receive or give flowers! In their natural loveliness Who doesn't like to receive or give flowers! In their natural loveliness they more fully express love, sympathy, congratulations or other sentiment than words or gifts. However, there is a right way to send flowers just as there is a proper etiquette in other forms of social decor. Your florist can do much to advise you. Talk to him about the individual or particular occasion, so that he can help you make a perfect choice. There are just a few simple, legical rules to follow, according to the Florists Information Council. are just a few simple, legical rules to follow, according to the Florists Information Council.

If the flowers are to go to someone in a hospital, order arranged flowers or a plant rather than a box of flowers because busy nurses have little time for arranging them. Don't select too-fragrant flowers or vivid colors for one who is extremely ill. Include an extent flower for the nurse. The traditional American custom of sending tweers to assuage grief and lead beauty to a somber occasion needs but a few gracious touches of consideration and tact. Remember, flowers are sent as a tribute and a true expression of sympathy. In sending flowers to the funeral, address them to the funeral of the individual if known to you; otherwise to the nearest relative you know. If you are especially fond of the bereaved family, it is a nice thought to send some flowers to the home the day after the funeral to let them know your thoughts are with them.

For the young folks, corsages should be delicate in hue, in keeping with youth, while the more mature will appreciate something more sophisticate. A tip for the men—select corsages to match or contrast the color of the gown to be worn. If in doubt, white is always right.

Who pays for what for weddings is frequently questioned. The answers are simple and positive. The bride's family pays for all flowers in the thurch, the reception and for the bridesmaid's bouquets. Either the groom or the bride's family pays for the bride's bouquet, but the groom pays for the boutonieres for his best man, the ushers and himself. He also pays for the bride's going-away corsage and for the corsages for both mothers and any sisters who are not bridesmaids.

Flowers are one of God's most beautiful natural gifts, and have an eloquence and dignity of expression. They are an offering of thought-fulness and right remembrance.
